 Starter Issue

We would like to take the opportunity to invite someone who did not yet contribute to Hoodie to work on this issue. Follow @YourFirstPR on Twitter for more of these issues across many open source projects 🤗

 The Task

We need someone to create some copy (1-2 sentences) about Hoodie and submit it to the official PouchDB site (<http://pouchdb.com/users.html>).

I can assist with getting assets to send along with our submission.

- Claim this issue (@turcapat)
- Research and write a 1-2 sentence description of what Hoodie does.
- Find out the guidelines for submitting to <http://pouchdb.com/users.html>.
- Submit to @renrutnej @Charlotteis or @janl for review (Google docs probably work best for this sort of thing)
- Ping any of the above for a logo asset to submit with the final copy.
- You are done 🙌 comment below that your content is ready for review 🎉

Ping us in the Hoodie Chat or on Twitter if you have any questions :)

Since it's view only I'll give my feedback here:

"Hoodie provides complete back-end solution for your front-end code. It helps you develop your web application fast, easy and accessible. Just plug in your front-end code to Hoodie API, and your app is ready."

- change references of back-end or front-end to backend and frontend per the glossary guide
- s/solution/solutions
- By accessible do you mean it makes the web application accessible or using Hoodie is accessible to users? I want to be clear on this term because accessibility has a distinct industry connotation
- Rephrase Just plug your front-end code to Hoodie API... to Just plug your frontend code into Hoodie's API... to avoid confusion with plugins (a feature further down the release plan)

Thanks for writing this @turcapat 🍷👏

I added my tweaks, I'd just like feedback from @gr2m or @janl as well. Great stuff @turcapat ✨

@turcapat looking good, added minor suggestions.

For the last sentence, instead of

Just plug your frontend code into Hoodie's API, and your app is ready

I'd say

Just plug Hoodie's API into your frontend code, and your app is ready

As logically you add the Hoodie API to your frontend code, not the other way around. Does that make sense?

@espy do you have Hoodie the logo, maybe with the domain in it?

Here's two!

And as SVG

And the dark one as SVG

And here's a white SVG, just in case.

Yes create the pull request. The "Green Button" is about merging the pull request, not starting it. They could make that more clear :)
